high school site, and whether the high school should be expected to accommodate more than 1000 or, at the very most, 1200 students. The alternative is another, or possibly two more high schools.

Projected population graphs for Torrance indicate an ultimate population of 104,000. Hull said, "If and when this time comes—five times as many people as we now have—we would have to plan for perhaps three high schools."

Hull believes about half of the high school population may come from the area south of Pacific Coast highway. He indicated he believed it would be desirable to acquire a 40-acre site for another high school in the southern section of the city, as soon as possible to do so and hold it until needed.

Possibility of a high school site in the North Torrance area also was mentioned during the discussion, but since subdivision activity is considerably greater at the present time in the southern part of the city, no definite policy was agreed upon for the time being.

School officials today were reading with tongue in cheek the absences excuses that poured in following a sudden drop in attendance during Monday and Tuesday's snowfall. They ran the gamut of illnesses from one-day colds to freezemonia and other never-heard-of afflictions.

A few teachers were the targets of snowballs and one snowman attempted to survive, unsuccessfully, when he appeared in the halls of Torrance High School.

Police had no reports of accidents as a result of the unusual road conditions that developed although one man was hurt indirectly as a result of the storm Tuesday night.

One youthful culprit who could not resist the temptation to do a little snowballing proved he was not accustomed to living in snow country. He scooped up a snowball, pitched it thru a neighbor's window, and ran home. Police had no difficulty in locating the youth. They merely followed his footprints in the new fallen snow to his home.

Nurseries and plant growers throughout the area reported that the snow added only slight damage to the heavy frost of the previous week when the temperatures dropped to a record low of 25 degrees.

And finally it appeared that local residents were preparing for additional cool weather to come. Sam Levy, owner of the Levy Department Store, reported that sales of long underwear have increased more than 50 per cent since the cold snap.

New stainless steel garden tools that won't rust are strong enough for the he-man and light enough to encourage his wife.

Plan Sea Wall for Torrance Beach Sector

Because angry tides may damage the Palos Verdes swimming pool located at the water's edge on a stretch of beach adjacent to Torrance beach, the Palos Verdes City Council has voted $200 toward the construction of an experimental sea wall to protect the pool.

S. F. Bergstrom, director of works, plans to build the sea wall of stones available on the beach site.

Cost of Street Work Is Under City Estimate

Resurfacing of Border avenue from Torrance boulevard southerly to Plaza Del Amo will cost $3000 less than the city's estimate, on the basis of bids received last week by the Torrance City Council.

The Griffith Company will do the work for $14,157, while the estimate of City Engineer George Stevens was $17,160.

One other bid was received for the work, that of the Warren Southwest Company, for $14,190. This is the closest bidding on city street work for some months, officials said.

The life of huge oil refinery cracking towers has been increased from about two months to several years through the use of stainless steel linings.

New Teaching Personnel at Local Schools

Employment of four more certificated personnel on the teaching staff of Torrance Unified School District has been approved by the Board of Education, at the request of Supt. J. H. Hull.

The teachers are Noel Korn, high school; and three elementary teachers—Edward G. Beeley, Kathryn Mary Giltsholm and Philomena Crooks Miller.

The board also approved the employment of Mary Ann Schneider from Jan. 3 to 7, to fill an emergency, and the employment of Molly Margaret Marshall as a substitute teacher as needed.
